Meeting the Challenges of Higher Education

The 2013 Black, Brown & College Bound Summit (BBCB) will take place at the Tampa Marriot Waterside Hotel Tampa, Florida from February 20 –23, 2013. The theme is entitled “Rebuilding the ‘Village’ for African American and Latino Males in Higher Education.” The 7th annual Summit invites you to join us and contribute toward the solutions of “rebuilding the village”. We are featuring speakers such as Dr. Michael Eric Dyson, Dr. José Cruz and Dr. Khalil Muhammad.

The 2013 BBCB theme will address topics relating to identity, masculinity, culture, community, and education. The aforementioned topics comprise the main foci in the 21st century village that will impact the success and future of African American and Latino men in higher education.

The 21st century requires a collective consciousness that would allow educational professionals and practitioners to work together to explore solutions and develop new innovative ideas. This collective action and responsibility belong to everyone that touches the lives of African American and Latino males.

We are currently accepting proposals through October 30, 2012 and registration is now open.
